THE RHUMB LINE

From Maine Maritime Museum

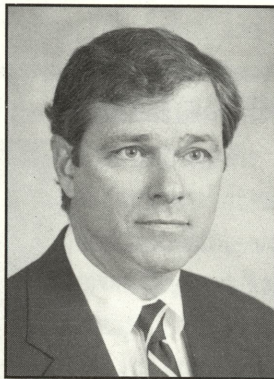

New Executive Director Appointed

Tom Wilcox came aboard in early December as Executive Director at Maine Maritime Museum.

Mr. Wilcox spent 24 years with Shawmut Bank of Hartford, Connecticut, bringing the Museum diverse experience in business and financial management and strategic planning. Mr. Wilcox serves as the Museum's chief executive officer and will be responsible for managing all aspects of Museum operations. During his two months at the helm, Mr. Wilcox has brought new energy to strategic planning efforts, and has begun preparations for a busy summer season.

Leonard Cronkhite, Chairman of the Museum's Board of Trustees, reports, "Tom comes to us from Essex, Connecticut where he has developed many maritime interests which include a long association with Mystic Seaport as trustee and chairman of their pilot steering committee, and in the Museum's exhibitions committee." As an enlisted sailor in the Navy, as a Governor of the Essex Yacht Club in Essex, Connecticut, and as Fleet Captain of the Shelter Island Yacht Club on Long Island, New York, Mr. Wilcox has earned sturdy, and capable, sea legs.

Mr. Wilcox replaces Ned Harding who has served as Interim Executive Director for the past year; Mr. Harding re-joined the Board of Trustees, serving as Vice-Chairman.

Executive Director, Tom Wilcox

Examination of Maine's Role in World War II

Exhibition "E": Maine Ships For Victory opens March 10, providing an illumination of coastal Maine people and their contributions towards winning World War II.

Twenty-four Maine shipyards built more than 1300 vessels between December 7, 1941 and the end of the war in 1945. Bath Iron Works built destroyers; two yards in South Portland built Liberty Ships; and the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard in Kittery built submarines. Often forgotten is the number of smaller yards which produced hundreds of vessels for combat and non-combat use, such as minesweepers, coastal transports and utility boats, at firms like Gamage's yard in South Bristol, Hinckley's in Southwest Harbor, and Hodgdon's in East Boothbay.

The Maine homefront deserves as much attention as does the workplace in the context of observing activities and events that took place on the coast during World War II. Rationing of butter, gas and sugar, the implementation of a civilian coastal watch for enemy aircraft and vessels, the exhaustive efforts of the Coast Guard all made definite contributions toward victory.

The lives of those who fought at sea are what the war, the victory, and the outcome of both, are truly all about. Shipmodels, shipyard I.D. badges and shift books, celebratory launching pins, Merchant Marine medals, original propaganda posters, historic photographs, and shipbuilders' tools will provide a full understanding of the role of the Mainer and of the Maine shipyards in helping to win World War II.

The Navy "E" and Army-Navy "E" were awards given for efficiency in pursuing the war effort. The coveted "E" was awarded to several Maine shipyards and many Maine-built naval vessels.

Exhibition "E" will be on display in the Crooker Gallery through October 29, 1995.

From the Chart Table

Tom Wilcox at the helm of a Museum tug boat yacht

First, a word about me. On December 5, 1994 I took my place "at the chart table" once again. This is a familiar place to me because I served in the Navy as a Quartermaster of the Watch, keeping a plot of the ship's position. Planning a route, calculating courses and speeds, plotting the position, helping with the getting there are what I've done a fair amount of in my life—literally, in the Navy and later in boats and yachts, and, figuratively, as a business person and a museum and club trustee. To be able to combine such talents as I have as a planner and a manager with a great affinity for boats, ships and the sea is a marvelous coincidence and a great privilege for me. I welcome the challenge the Board has provided me, helping to move the Museum from where it is today to even greater accomplishments.

Now, about our museum. Spring is almost upon us. Watercraft, floats and moorings are being readied for another season afloat on the Kennebec. Indoors, our hallways and galleries are quite lively indeed with the first of what will be thousands of school children to participate in our many educational programs this year. In the Apprenticeshop, a little Lawley tender is being built with a Herreshoff version to quickly follow. Our latest exhibit, "Exhibition 'E': Maine Ships for Victory, a wonderful retrospective of Maine's efforts in ending World War II, has just opened. Outdoors, the Shipyard has been open all winter, hosting visitors through all the four seasons. All exhibits outside the Maritime History Building are open daily except during the most severe of weather conditions.

Planning for this summer's programs is well under way.

We anticipate more activity this year than last - more interpretation, more craft demonstrations, more ship visits and, hopefully, more visitors. The staff, the volunteers and I look forward to seeing you here often this year and, as always, we welcome your thoughts and comments.

New Shop Manager

Kathi Gott-Beedy recently joined the staff as Manager of Retail and Wholesale Operations.

Gott-Beedy controls all Museum Shop purchasing, merchandising and marketing and has begun outlining long- and short- term operational plans for the retail and wholesale divisions. She plans to develop a maritime-related line of Museum products to be sold in the Shop and through the mail. Gott-Beedy will also manage visitor services for the Museum, including monitoring, planning and forecasting ticket sales. The Museum is researching the implementation of a computerized inventory and ticketing system, potentially to be tested during the summer of 1995.

Since her coming on board in October, Gott-Beedy has redecorated and rejuvenated various displays and has implemented a new advertising campaign.

With more than fourteen years in retail operations, Gott-Beedy has an excellent record of devising and realizing organizational objectives. She spent the past five years teaching marketing at the Capitol Area Technical Center in Augusta. Gott-Beedy owned Amity Furniture, a restoration company in Portland, for several years.

Tour of Nova Scotia Heritage

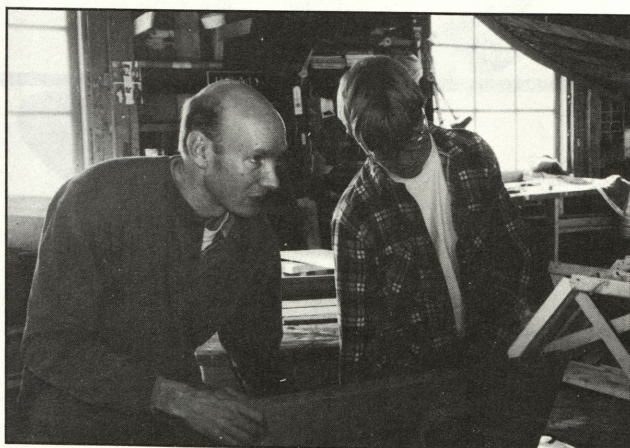

This June, join Maine Maritime Museum and Penobscot Marine Museum for a discovery tour of Nova Scotia's regional heritage. The six-day trip begins with a cruise on board the Scotia Prince. On arrival in Yarmouth, you'll wind through the of the coastal towns of Shelburne, Lunenburg, Halifax, Dartmouth, visiting sites like Annapolis Royal, Longfellow's inspiration for "Evangeline."

Bud Warren, MMM Group Program Coordinator and Sam Shogren, Curator of PMM, will lead and narrate the tour. Niels Jannasch, Founding Director of the Maritime Museum of the Atlantic, will accompany the group to share his vast knowledge of the province's maritime heritage.

The tour package costs of $1,270 per person ($1,220 for members) which includes transportation to and from Portland on the Scotia Prince, five nights' accommodations and nine meals, motorcoach ground travel, admission to eight museums, and several private lectures and tours. Travel dates are June 24 - 29; reservations must be made by April 1. Call the Museum at 443-1316 for more information and to register.

Oh to Be Sailing in March...

To warm up and start thinking about life out on the water, MMM has invited several outstanding professionals to tell their various stories about high adventure on the rough seas. Please join us in the Maritime History Building and enjoy refreshments with the speakers after their presentations. Each lecture begins at 7 p.m. and costs $6 for those who have pre-registered, $8 for those who pay at the door. Members receive a 10% discount.

March 7

Benjamin Mendlowitz will illustrate his mastery of capturing classic images of wooden boats in this photo-lecture and discussion.

March 14

Cam Lewis, crew member on board the winning America's Cup yacht, Stars & Stripes, will bring seafaring adventure to life at Maine Maritime Museum in this presentation.

March 21

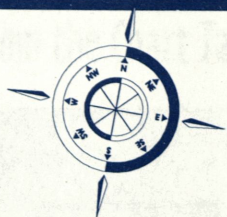

Julia Crossley will present "Sailing Antarctica's Most Mad Seas," her stories of sailing and exploring Tierra del Fuego and Antarctica.

March 28

Don't miss Brian Hancock's lecture, "A Life Spent Wet," where he will introduce a humorous look at modern day sailing careers.

Build Your Own Sea Kayak Workshops

Maine Maritime Museum is offering a unique opportunity to learn an ancient style of boat construction in winter workshops on building traditional Pacific Eskimo sea kayaks.

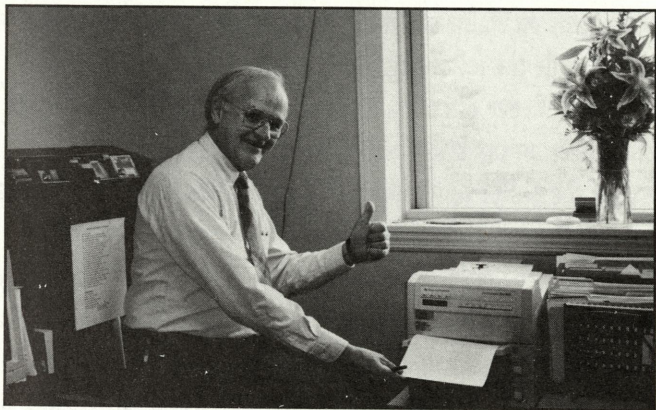

The weekend workshops will teach all stages of constructing a custom-fit kayak, and will provide participants with solid history of the design, construction, use, and performance of traditional kayaks, and students leave the course with their own kayak.

Saturdays & Sundays, March 18 - April 22; 9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Prior woodworking experience is not necessary. $1,700 tuition per person includes all materials. To register, please call (207) 443-1316 or fill out the form on page seven.

New Paintings of Antique Warships

Ian Marshall's USS Alabama, Golden Gate 1945

Ram Bows & Ironclads, an exhibition of watercolor paintings of early ironclad warships by Ian Marshall, opened January 19.

Marshall specializes in historically accurate paintings of warships of the world during 1860-1945, the period of time when iron-plated and then steel-armored warships, many with bows shaped to ram other vessels, took over the sailing "wooden walls." Before this time, wooden men-of-war and frigates made up the front line of the world's navies.

On a soft background, Marshall presents fine, accurate details of each ship in an environment, an action which subtly reminds the viewer of its importance in history. He connects ship with relevant, significant situations, providing a bigger, more complete and important, historical picture. Marshall has portrayed American, British, French, German, and Russian ships in his work, and wonderfully evokes the spirit of the times.

An architect by trade, Marshall applies his command and respect of the smallest detail with the art of traditional watercolor painting as related to his fascination with maritime history. Marshall's bold watercolors have been displayed at the Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland and at the Navy Museum in Washington, D.C. Originally from Scotland, Marshall has lived and painted in Southwest Harbor, Maine for many years.

Ram Bows & Ironclads will run through May 21 in the Peterson Gallery, concurrently with the Museum's World War II exhibition, Exhibition "E", which opens March 10, and with the Museum's Maritime History Symposium on the weekend of May 5.

23rd Annual Maritime History Symposium

The twenty-third annual Maritime History Symposium, held on the first weekend in May, will see a gathering of all sorts of people interested in maritime history, from ship buffs and seamen to museum historians and academic scholars. This year, the Symposium will focus on World War II maritime history, a mix of Navy, merchant marine, and shipbuilding subjects, with an emphasis on Maine's homefront experience. Speakers and topics include the following:

John H. Reevy of Portland, Maine will share his experiences as an officer on the Bath-built destroyer Hughes at the time the vessel suffered a Kamikaze strike. Historian Thomas Lynch, instrumental in saving a Canadian corvette, will speak about Canadian corvette classes during World War II. Edward A. Langlois, Jr., founder and President of the South Portland Shipyard Society, will share his first-hand knowledge of the construction of British Ocean-class freighters and American Liberty at South Portland. Avery Booth Stone will recount the fascinating tale of sailing a schooner down the Atlantic coast with her parents during wartime. Author William P. Quinn's talk entitled, "I Never Saw Bob Hope," will provide insight into non-combatant Naval service in the Pacific.

Captain Arthur R. Moore, author of A Careless Word...A Needless Sinking, will discuss the remarkable and courageous contribution to the war effort made by merchant seamen, and the terrible price they paid.

MAINE MARITIME MUSEUM

1993 - 1994 Annual Report

Dear Friends,

Under the leadership of Interim Executive Director Ned Harding and Chairman Bill Peterson during this past year, the entire Maine Maritime Museum family joined together to produce a year of excitement, growth and outstanding accomplishment. The Museum met the budget and successfully worked toward the institutional mission to acknowledge, preserve, and interpret the role which Maine plays and has played in worldwide maritime affairs. The fiscal results were impressive indeed: a 160% increase in support from Trustees, corporations and foundations and a 22% increase in overall income, with expenses up only 3% all resulted in a balanced budget, plus some black ink on the bottom line. Maine Maritime Museum has worked with thousands of volunteers, members, donors, and visitors to tell the story of Maine's maritime heritage to an ever-widening audience. With gratitude to so many who have given much time and energy, we look back with pride and look forward with enthusiastic optimism.

Leonard W. Cronkhite, Jr., M.D., Chairman of the Board

Some highlights of 1994 include:

- ★ More than 70,000 visitors filled the Shipyard and Museum;
- ★ 14,000 local schoolchildren, up from 2,700 in 1992-93, discovered the importance of the Museum and of Bath's shipbuilding traditions through several education programs;
- ★ Our collections were boosted with 1,191 artifacts, both 3-D and archival;
- ★ We celebrated the restoration of the historic Deering Pier, now the only deep water dockage south of the Carlton Bridge, with two grand visits from Tall Ships Gazela and "H.M.S." Rose;
- ★ The entire collection of artifacts has been computerized;
- ★ The Apprenticeship Program, under the guidance of new manager John Bloemendaal, has begun construction on the first of three new wooden vessels, the 12' Lawley tender;
- ★ 1,000 launchings were witnessed in the Percy & Small Shipyard as volunteers and staff demonstrated, with a model schooner, the launching process as practiced in the early 1900s.
